The long and the short of it....

An often overlooked segment of the LIC market is that of long-short strategies, which offer some unique advantages through the LIC wrapper. This strategy involves the manager taking long positions in stocks which they see as undervalued and will appreciate, whilst utilising short positions for companies which they anticipate a decline in price. This involves borrowing shares, selling them with the intention to purchase them down the line at a lower price to cover their borrowing obligation.

Given the nature of closed ended funds, managers with long-short strategies can utilise a higher degree of leverage due to the fixed size of the fund, given a stable capital base when compared to open ended funds. Whilst leverage can be a method used to dial up returns, it does come at the expense of greater risk. Managers therefore must carefully balance long-short positions to reach a desired level of market exposure, implement derivatives for hedging and frequently adjust leverage levels. Returns therefore are dependent on stock selection skills, market timing and the management of overall leverage and risk exposure. Long-short strategies provide a mechanism for investors to potentially benefit from both rising and falling markets, given managers can take directional bets, supported by unique structural features of LIC/LITs.

SOURCE: COMPANY REPORTS , BELL POTTER RESEARCH *AS AT 31 AUGUST 2024

When analysing the performance of ASX-listed long-short LICs, key metrics used are the upside and downside capture ratios:

- The upside capture ratio measures how well a fund performs relative to the benchmark in a rising market. A score higher than 100 indicates the fund captures more of an upswing relative to the benchmark.
- The downside capture ratio measures a funds performance in a falling market relative to the benchmark. A score of less than 100 demonstrates the fund is able to capture less of the downside than the benchmark.

Three year upside and downside capture ratios based on pre-tax NTA amongst broad market mandated long-short LICs are shown in Figure 1. When looking at LICs best able to capture market upside, both the L1 Capital Long Short Fund (LSF) and the Regal Investment Fund (RF1) reflect higher upside capture ratios within the peer group. Conversely, when looking at downside exposure, both the Regal Investment Fund (RF1) and Regal Asia Investments Limited (RG8) returned the lowest comparative scores, indicating both funds are able to capture less downside compared to the benchmark, with all four returning a score of less than 100.

MRE launches on market

On Wednesday we saw the listing of the Metrics Real Estate Multi-Strategy Fund (MRE). The market opened near the offer price of $2.00 with volumes decreasing as the week progressed. In total, MRE raised circa $300 million, taking the market capitalisation Metrics' combined LIT offerings to over $3 billion.

The fund provides investors exposure in the commercial real estate sector (CRE), by holding units in both the MCP Real Estate Debt Fund and the Metrics RE Equity Opportunities Fund. This provides the portfolio with a blend of real estate debt and equity exposure through CRE loans within the debt fund as well as commercial development opportunities through the active trust. The manager is targeting a return of 10-12% per annum, with distributions paid monthly primarily from the underlying holding in the debt fund. Together with this, the manager intends to achieve equity upside through partnering with real estate developers in the construction of CRE projects.

Bell Potter's Indicative NTA tracks the 'indicative' movement of a LIC's underlying NTA each month by monitoring the percentage movements of the disclosed holdings, and using an index to track the movement of the remaining positions. We have also included an adjusted indicative NTA and adjusted discount, where applicable, which removes the LIC distribution from the ex-dividend date until the receipt of the new NTA post the payment date.
